

Besides the wholly predictable result of a single company controlling a town's TV stations, radio stations, cable company and only newspaper, elimination of the cross ownership rule will essentially signal the absorption of the newspaper business into the television industry, with a negative impact on the quality of print journalism. Newspaper companies see savings in news gathering by combining with TV stations as a big plus, giving an indication that the newly merged megacompanies would provide communities with less news, not more.